Using a K10.5/6.5 mm crochet hook and blanket yarn, a chain of 12 should measure just under 5 inches long. After row 1, your work should measure 1 inch high.

Pattern Notes

For this pattern, you will begin by chaining and then joining to the start of the chain to make a loop. It is really important at this step to make sure that you don't twist your chain. After slip stitching to create your circle, be sure to chain 1. This doesn't count as a stitch, but just provides a starting point for you to begin working your half double crochets.

This pattern is worked completely in half double crochet stitches. You will be working in continuous rounds, so after the first round, you will just begin working in the first stitch from the previous round. When making your half double crochets, you will be placing your stitches in the front 2 loops. If you need a visual to understand what this looks like, Hooks, Books, and Wanderlust has a great photo tutorial.

Chain 12. Making sure not to twist your chain, join with the first stitch of the chain to make a circle.

Round 1: Chain 1, HDC in each stitch around (12)

Working in continuous rounds,

Rounds 2-6: HDC 12 in front 2 loops (12)

Round 7: HDC 12 in front 2 loops. FO. (12)

If you are anything like me, instead of counting rows, you may prefer to count stitches. The finished pattern is made with 84 half double crochets. I sometimes keep going to 88 half double crochets to line up my starting yarn with my finished tail, but that is totally optional.

Note: This pattern is meant for blanket yarn such as Bernat Blanket or Bernat Baby Blanket. If you are using a thicker yarn like Lion Brand Cover Story, you can leave out one row!

Attaching Your Felt Patch to Your Frosty Freeze Pop Sleeve

After weaving in your ends, flatten your freeze pop sleeve so that the side you want to be the front is face up. Apply a generous amount of hot melt glue to the back of the felt patch, putting the glue as close to the edges of the patch as possible without using too much that may cause the glue to come out the sides. Then, firmly press the patch into the center of the freeze pop sleeve.

I will typically put my fingers into the sleeve and apply pressure to the back of the patch while the glue dries. This helps make it stay on tightly, but also helps to make sure there is not any glue coming through the front and gluing the sleeve front and back together. Just be sure to not burn yourself!
